ANNOUNCEMENT

"International Young Academy of Cardiology (IYAC)", a global non-profit organization established to unite young cardiologists from all over the world, is a voluntary community established under the Cardiovascular Academy Association and is one of the brands of the Association that has been used for years.

The Cardiovascular Academy Association has made great efforts to grow and promote IYAC, and as a result, it has achieved its current recognition thanks to the Cardiovascular Academy Association. In this context, it has been determined by us that, unfortunately, one of the members of our association maliciously attempted to register IYAC in his own name before the Turkish Patent and Trademark Office, without the approval and knowledge of our board of directors, at the time of the registration application for the trademark.

In the face of the current situation, our international youth academy 2022 congress will be held under the umbrella of the "International Academy of Young Cardiologists (IAYC)" established within the body of our Association.

Against this malicious attempt, legal process has been started by meeting with our association's trademark attorney and lawyers, and we would like to share with the public that our association will use all its legal rights to the fullest, and that we will use all our compensation and penal rights. Finally, the result of the legal process will be shared with the public.

Regards

Cardiovascular Academy Association Board of Directors
